

Please hold your picture book exhibition at Kumamoto city in Japan!

Hello, Mr. Eric Carle;

I am sorry for sending this letter of the request suddenly. I am a Japanese pediatrician who running my tiny private clinic in Japan and nearly ten years has past since the opening. My clinic's waiting room is always full of your picture books. I stored these picture books, which became missed and old, and I took photos, you see a lot of very hungry caterpillars!

I appreciate your exhibitions in Japan this year and I visited it at Tokyo. It impressed me very much.

Last year mega-earthquake hit Kumamoto city, where I live in, and children still carry heavy mental damage on their back. And I got an idea that your books exhibition must encourage these damaged children and give them a lot of dreams. Kumamoto is a southern city in Kyushu area in Japan, so children can't visit your exhibition even if the place is Kyoto.

Although these attached letters are written in Japanese, they are letters from children yearning for your picture book exhibition at Kumamoto in Japan. I will be glad if you take them in your hand and take a look.

It would be very happy if you could hold your picture book exhibition at Kumamoto city in Japan. Also I know these kinds of things may need donation of the charitable person and I will be very happy for the contribution.

Thank you so much. I will be glad if I can have your reply.
